A PROGRAMME FOR LEADERS BY LEADERS

1

The Lee Kuan Yew Senior Fellowship in Public Service (SFPS Programme) is tailored to senior-level leaders in public, private and non-profit sectors. The programme features a rigorous curriculum that focuses on developing leadership and governance competencies of participants, equipping them with the tools to take on challenges at a global level. Against the backdrop of Asia, the programme developed and taught by academicians and practitioners will explore key issues of the decade and significant trends as well as critical insights into the opportunities and challenges that follow.

The programme is more than just an advanced leadership programme, it is a fellowship as participants will be known as Lee Kuan Yew Senior Fellows. They will be able to network with talented leaders and high profile individuals, building priceless professional and personal connections that last a lifetime.

*This 5-week programme will run from 14 October - 15 November 2024. **

**The School reserves the right to make adjustments to deliver the best possible programme for the participants*

A PROGRAMME TAILORED TO SENIOR-LEVEL LEADERS IN PUBLIC, PRIVATE, AND NON-PROFIT SECTORS.

2

“The programme will be an intensive, immersive, transformative and rewarding learning experience. Participants will acquire insights into pressing global issues and rapid technological change, and the changes taking place around us and before us. They will sharpen their critical thinking and leadership skills to better deal with a world full of unknowns; from developing practical and innovative solutions that will make immense contributions to transforming their organisations and countries. Through the programme, crucial exchanges in intellectual discourse and expertise sharing will also help them to form enduring and valuable networks and understandings with other leaders in Asia.”

PROF TAN YONG SOON
PROFESSOR IN PRACTICE AND SFPS PROGRAMME CO-DIRECTOR, LKYSPP, NUS

“The programme offers a unique blend of insights and practical experiences from experts covering a wide range of topics. Underpinning every discussion and presentation in the programme is the unifying idea that the success of a nation or an organisation depends on the quality of its leadership. The effects of global events and emerging issues such as climate change and technological disruptions will be examined from the perspective of governance and the role of leaders. It will be apparent to participants that those in leadership and governance need to be flexible and nimble in the face of these challenges. The programme offers opportunities for participants to participate in deep discussions with presenters who have deep knowledge and appreciation of the forces which are shaping our world today.

The programme will offer alternative perspectives on issues discussed and presented. It is hoped that through this programme participants will take away fresh perspectives and ideas to the challenges they face back home. And this in turn can contribute further to the development of the leadership capabilities of participants.”

PROF YAACOB BIN IBRAHIM
ADJUNCT PROFESSOR AND SFPS PROGRAMME CO-DIRECTOR, LKYSPP, NUS
ADVISOR, OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT, SIT

WHAT CAN STUDENTS GAIN FROM THIS PROGRAMME?

As a LKY Senior Fellow, you will develop visionary leadership qualities that empower you to inspire change within your organisation. Get the opportunity to learn from leading scholars and experienced practitioners and discuss current policy making and governance challenges confronting Asia and the World today with similar high potential peers. Students of the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy (LKYSPP) and National University of Singapore (NUS) will also gain access to our expertise, resources and guiding principles that aided Singapore in the development of its public policies.

3

“Disruption in our external environment have always raised challenges for public policy. But the changes now are unprecedentedly profound, broad-based, and rapid – whether in technology disruption, domestic political discontent, or the international environment for trade and cooperation. Nations everywhere face a deep loss of trust in traditional policy structures. This new global environment has raised demand, more than ever, for disciplined evidence-based public policy. The programme at the LKYSPP provides its Senior Fellows directly useful practitioner insights, network-sharing collaborations, and evidence-based disciplinary thinking on the great public policy challenges of our time.”

PROF DANNY GUAH
DEAN AND LI KA SHING PROFESSOR IN ECONOMICS, LKYSPP, NUS

“Rapid technological change can positively affect many aspects of societies and economies. Both the pace of change and the fusion of technologies are potentially disruptive and can be powerful transition drivers to good societal outcomes when accompanied by appropriate public policy. Using Singapore as an example, participants will gain an early awareness of the key technologies for the next decade and learn how they could be harnessed to contribute to industry and society.”

MR LIM SIONG GUAN
FORMER HEAD OF CIVIL SERVICE, SINGAPORE

CURRICULUM

The programme comprises the following components:

Leadership

Develop visionary and effective leadership that empowers you to transform your organisation. Learn to identify and develop talents, inspire morale, develop capabilities, and improve synergy in a Whole of Government/ Whole of Nation strategy. Pragmatic real-world strategies will equip you for the future to lead and manage change.

Globalisation

International Economics

Globalisation was a tough challenge for emerging economies in the past. But today, despite the benefits that globalisation has brought, the challenges have also evolved. The international economics component of this module focuses on the subject of managing globalisation, with discussions on economic forces and geopolitics, as well as how to assess and manage global and regional economic integration.

International Security

Develop a clear understanding of shifting geopolitical trends at global and regional levels, and how they have an impact on international security.

National Governance

What is a “good” public policy? Discover the best way to evaluate public policies and how to adapt exemplary ones to your own situations. Through situation-based challenges, we will guide you on applying governance principles to select issues in economic and social policies.

This module includes lectures by experienced practitioners and visits to Singapore Statutory Boards to experience governance in practice.

Technology & Innovation

The accelerated pace of development and the emergence of disruptive technologies pose both the opportunity for societal development as well as the risk of disrupting the society at every level.

To grasp the volatile landscape, public policy makers and corporate leaders will need keen awareness of developments in technology and an appreciation of how this can contribute to the development of policies and regulations.

DEEP DIVE SESSIONS

- Climate Change & Sustainability
- Healthy & Purposeful Longevity
- Law & Its Impact on Public Administration
- Social Policy & Development
- Urban Governance

Benjamin Willam Cashore

Li Ka Shing Professor in Public Management and Director, Institute for Environment and Sustainability (IES), LKYSPP, NUS

Ben Cashore specialises in global and multi-level environmental governance, comparative public policy and administration, and transnational business regulation/corporate social responsibility. His substantive research interests include climate policy, biodiversity conservation/land use change, and sustainable environmental management of forests and related agricultural sectors. His geographic focus includes Southeast Asia, North America, Latin America and Europe.

Ben's theoretical interests include the legitimacy and authority requirements of non-state market driven (NSMD) global governance, the influence of economic globalisation on domestic environmental policies, and the potential of anticipatory policy design for identifying path dependent policy mixes capable of ameliorating "super wicked" environmental problems. He integrates his theoretical and empirical research around two key themes:

- 1) developing and managing problem oriented multi-stakeholder policy learning processes
- 2) strategies for nurturing multiple step policy pathways

Ben joined LKYSPP after spending 18 years at Yale University as a professor of environmental governance and political science, where he also directed the Governance, Environment and Markets (GEM) initiative and, from 2014-2019, directed the Yale International Fox Fellows exchange program which awards promising graduate students in 18 partner universities. Ben currently serves as the Director of the Institute for Environment and Sustainability (IES), which focuses on knowledge diffusion and integration of environmental policy design research. Ben and the IES team have recently launched the Climate Policy Design Lab – the latest innovation in the Institute's mission to accelerate policy design capacity building throughout Southeast Asia and globally. Ben was born and raised in British Columbia, Canada. His PhD is from the University of Toronto and he undertook postdoctoral research at Harvard University and the University of British Columbia. He worked for three years in Ottawa, Canada as a policy advisor to the leader of the Canadian New Democratic Party.

HIGHEST DEGREE EARNED

TESTIMONIALS

“The state-of-the-art knowledge and practical experience of theories, methods and tools of scenario study greatly helps to build a reliable decision-making system.”

Mr Ding Mingqin, Deputy Director-General
Ministry of Science and Technology
General Office, China

“I was expecting to learn mainly from the Professors and the materials or readings required in class. While this expectation was indeed met (overwhelmingly in many instances!), there was an added bonus of learning so much from the rest of the Senior Fellows. The viewpoints and opinions shared in class are truly invaluable and could not have been possible without the generosity and openness from everyone involved.”

Ms Monalisa Carneo Dimalanta,
Chairperson, National Renewable Energy Board,
Philippines

“I enjoyed the experience thus far. The topics were relevant and information shared were insightful, and the discussion within the Study Group for the respective group presentation allowed a close and conducive opportunity to know each member better. The participants from various countries and agencies brought a wide range of experiences and view points, providing an interesting insight into their countries’ governance and policy thinking/ implementation process.”

Mr Koh Eng Wah Bernard, Assistant Chief Executive (Future Systems & Technology), PUB, Singapore’s National Water Agency, Singapore

“This programme at the LKYSPP was a delightful opportunity to meet a cohort of very beautiful minds from across the world, the extremely dedicated Professors of the School, the University & experts from Singapore and abroad. We are now aware of a wide range of information, situations, experiences and challenges that may affect us personally, as a community, as a nation and finally as a global citizen. We are also better equipped to face any challenge that form an integral part of any person who desires to serve in an extremely uncertain and unpredictable world!”

Mrs Annu Tandon, Chairperson, Shri Hriday Narain Dhawan Charitable Trust, India

“The programme was an incredible experience! We deliberated on geopolitical developments, governance and public policies of the day, technology, economic and social issues; reflecting on life and leadership in the process. We benefited from distinguished politicians, practitioners and experts that inspired and challenged us. We discovered new frontiers and toolkits for our professional and leadership journeys. Beyond the digital footprints of our shared experiences, our hearts and minds are also etched with precious memories that will endure.”

Ms Evelyn Khoo, Assistant Commissioner, Inland Revenue Authority of Singapore, Singapore
